Championing inclusive and adaptive teaching

“New possibilities for professional training in SEND - MoE, 2015

Who are OnLineTraining?

We believe that all learners should be given the best chance in life to achieve academic success and lead emotionally resilient lives!

OLT is an ed-tech company providing 'just-in-time', professional training in Special Educational Needs & Disabilities (SEND), and offers organisations a scalable, context-specific solution to build inclusive and adaptive teaching practices for children and young people with SEND. Since 2008, we have been supporting SENDCO/SENCOs, teachers, teaching support staff, senior leaders, including head teachers, social workers, and nursery staff in 104 countries.

The programme is made up of 15 blended and online courses, and new courses are developed in response to education priorities and the needs of our learning community. Our courses are created with, and delivered by, subject experts and shaped for specific contexts and educational stages. They make scholarly and practitioner-led research accessible and engaging, and are CPD certified for 20 hours of learning. Learning simulates the graduated approach to SEND, which enables the learner to quickly relate theory to practice. Learning dialogue encourages reflection on current perceptions and practice, and the sharing of successful inclusive teaching and learning strategies. The model is most impactful when applied in strategic partnership with education, health and social care services and schools, however, its flexibility caters for individuals and groups, too.

We continuously strive towards teaching excellence and, through our work with UNESCO and NATSIP, continue to raise awareness of SEND and champion inclusive and adaptive teaching. Our training solutions are affordable, without compromising quality or the learning experience, and our learners tell us that we understand what they need to be successful in SEND.

Rated by our customers (Dec 2019)

“ This course has had a huge impact on my teaching practice and how I view behaviour. I’ve learned to proactively manage behaviour in my classroom rather than being reactive!

Teacher, 2019

“ Would highly recommend this course. Confirmed and consolidated what I already knew as well as building my knowledge giving me many new ideas and insights. Beautifully led and a great team to collaborate with.

NQT, 2020

Who benefits from our training?

Our training is suitable for anyone who works with learners with a SEND-related need. SENDCOs/SENCOs, teachers, teaching and learning support assistants, senior leaders, advisory teachers, therapists, parents and carers benefit from and highly rate our courses (4.4 stars out of 5). NQTs and RQTs will find our courses beneficial for developing a toolkit of strategies, tools and approaches at the beginning of their career.

OLT courses are often used as part of a school-wide improvement process with delivery partners in local authorities and schools. This cost-effective model provides quality educational content that fosters quality first teaching in a discrete community of practice. Our courses are offered as part of the advisory service’s local offer and support improvement plans that are already in place in schools.
